

ANOTHER NEW ROMANY BOOK!

As in Phil Shelley's first book, Romany in the Lanes, we walk once again with Romany of the BBC (The Reverend George Bramwell Evens), the popular Naturalist writer and broadcaster who died in 1943. Romany was an inspiration to a whole generation and through him countless people came to love and appreciate wildlife and the countryside. Later generations also came under his influence, the author and artist of this book included, through reading his books. This present book is set in Cumbria – Cumberland as it then was. The places are real, and the characters are real people from Romany's era.

Based at Old Parks Farm in Glassonby with his beloved vardo (Gypsy caravan), Romany, accompanied by Arthur, the son of a local farmer, explores the intimate secrets of the creatures around them, and further afield. We watch dippers, foxes, nightjars, merlins and much more. We even go 'on the road' in the vardo. We also experience the traumas of the awesome Helm Wind and an enveloping snowfall.

It is to be hoped that this book will enthuse both older children and adults alike with a deep love for the Natural World, so precious to Romany himself, and so important to the future of our planet.

£7.99

plus £2.01 post and packing
TOTAL £10.00

129 pages in softback with black and white illustrations and photographs

To acquire this book, send a cheque, made payable to:
R L Hollands, at

Lamorna Publications
Yew Tree Studio, Marshwood,
Bridport, Dorset DT6 5QF
01297 678140
www.lamornapublications.co.uk

To learn more about Romany visit www.romanysociety.org.uk